Centre for Online Health – Telehealth Webinar

Centre for Health Services Research
(In partnership with the Australasian Telehealth Society)

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the COH Telehealth Forums will proceed each month with a special online format, which is designed to address common questions related to telehealth. The COH will partner with the Australasian Telehealth Society (ATHS) to provide a monthly webinar. The webinars will include a short presentation (20-30 minutes) on a specific telehealth topic, and a Q&A panel discussion (20 minutes) involving experts from the COH and the ATHS. Participants are encouraged to send their questions to enquiries@coh.uq.edu.au and the panel members will do their best to address these.

Webinar Topic:

Choosing the right videoconferencing platform for your telehealth service

Presented by:

Associate Professor Liam Caffery

Liam Caffery is an Associate Professor in telehealth at the University of Queensland. His research has focussed on practical trials which has involved implementing telehealth services across a broad range of services. Liam will share insights on how clinicians can choose an appropriate video conferencing platform for their telehealth service.

Panelists this month include:

Professor Anthony Smith, Director Centre for Online Health
Associate Professor Liam Caffery, Telehealth Technology Director, Centre for Online Health
Dr Helen Haydon, Research Fellow, Centre for Online Health
Ms Jackie Plunkett, President, ATHS
Mr Alan Taylor, Vice President, ATHS
Mr Adam Mothershaw, Telehealth Engineer, Centre for Online Health
