COH Telehealth Webinar

Centre for Online Health
CENTRE FOR HEALTH SERVICES RESEARCH

(In partnership with the Australian Telehealth Society)

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the COH Telehealth Forums will proceed each month with a special online format, which is designed to address common questions related to telehealth. The COH will partner with the Australian Telehealth Society (ATHS) to provide a monthly webinar. The webinars will include a short presentation (20-30 minutes) on a specific telehealth topic, and a Q&A panel discussion (20 minutes) involving experts from the COH and the ATHS. Participants are encouraged to send their questions to enquiries@coh.uq.edu.au and the panel members will do their best to address these.

Webinar Topic:
Getting ready for Remote Patient Monitoring

Presented by: Jane Kealey MPH, BSc, RN

Jane Kealey is the Telehealth Manager at Northeast Health Wangaratta, in regional north east Victoria. Jane has worked in telehealth for 7 years, designing clinical workflows enhanced by technology to address clinical service needs in regional settings. With a background in metro and rural nursing, along with research in cardiovascular and rural health, Jane's motivation is to contribute to the reduction of the rural-metro health divide through greater access to health and wellness care.

This forum will reflect on a sub-regional public health services' experience of implementing a remote patient monitoring project in an environment where change requirements ultimately could not be met. Significant effort was made by the range of stakeholders recognising benefits offered to patients to improve their self-management of chronic disease. The experience and learnings (to share), have placed the organisation in a strong position to implement such programs into the future.

Panelists this month include:

- Kristi-Lee Muir, Virtual Care Centre Project Officer, Wollongong Community Health Centre
- Sze-Yuan Ooi, Cardiologist & Clinical Researcher, UNSW, Prince of Wales Hospital Sydney, Eastern Heart Clinic
- Professor Anthony Smith, Director, Centre for Online Health, CHSR (Webinar Chairperson)
- Associate Professor Liam Caffery, Telehealth Technology Director, Centre for Online Health (Webinar Moderator)
